prophet "Young Jo," as he is called, tesides in a modest cottage on the bank of the river, but a few rods from the "mausion house." He is a quiet, unassuming man, endowed with no great brillancy of mind, but rather above the ordinary standard of men in good, honest, common sense. Mr. Smith is regarded by many thousand of Mormons as the legitimate appostolic successor of his father; and there is now quietly gathering around him a numerous congregation, who attend his preaching and his counsel and guidance.

Smith's widow, now the wife of Major domestic appointments of the "mansion house," es in ber first husband's life-time. Mrs. Bidamon has, doubtless, the most eventful history of any lady now living. and yet through all the vicesitudes that 20 Hhds. Choice new N. O. SUGAR; have followed her, in the prosperity and 10 " Prime " " trouble incident to the rise and fall of Mormonism, and the circumstances surrounding her first busband's violent death, her form and features are but slightly touched by the finger of time, and she is yet hale, pleasant lady, kind, hospitable, and unassuming. Cor. N. Y. World.

HOME AND WIFE ON SATURDAY NIGHT -Some one with a heart to appreciate the choice blessings of life, paints a glowing picture of the delights of home where love little home and a little angel in it of a Sathow furnished, provided there is a hope in it; let the wind blow-close the curtains !-What if they are calicoes or plain, without border or tasse!, or any such thing! Let the rain come down-heap up the fire. No matter if you haven't a candle to bless yourself with, for what a beautiful light glowing coals make, reddening, clouding sunset through the little room; just enough to talk by; not loud as in the hurrying world-but softly, whisperingly with pauses between them, for the form without and the thoughs within to fill it uy. Then wheel the sola round before the fire, no matter if the sofa is a settee, uncushioned at that, if so, may be it is just long enough for two orsay two and a half in it. How sweetly the music of silver bells, from time to time, falls ou the listening ear then? How mournfully sweet the chimes of the "days that are no more." Under such circumstances, and at such a time, one can get at lest sixty-nine and a half statute miles nearer 'kingdom come' in Malle Brun. May be you smile at this picture. Int there is a secret between us viz: it is a copy of the picture rudely drawn, but true as the Pentateuch, of all original in every human heart.

GENTEEL POVERTY .- The married man, the man of family, most deeply feels the miseries of genteel poverty. His personal sufferings are merged in the thoughts of home. He would gladly throw off the disguise, gladly resign his fashionable acquaintances, and seek his happiness when the day's labors are over, in the bosom of his family. But the inexorable world decides otherwise. He can never escape the grindstone to which he is tied. Country cousins must be entertained, family re-unions given, summer jaunts undertaken. He knows full well that as the mainspring of the whole machinery, if he once gives out, discord and destruction are the inevitable result, and he works on, hopeless and desperate. Finally, the anticipated crash comes. He loses nothing-he had nothing to lose. But now he may gain all for which he so long sighed. The play is over, the lights are out, and the gaudy trappings of assumed wealth may be replaced by honest homespun. But it is too late, the intoxicating bowl of worldly vanity has become too necessary to the depraved taste to be now resigned. Once it might have been but not now. Again he starts upon the fatal race, again for a moment hovers above the horizon, and then forever disappears from sight, and it is heaven's mercy if his memory is untainted.

SPEAKING WELL OF OTHERS .- If the disposition to speak well of others were uniprevalent, the world would become a comparative paradise. The opposite disposition is the Pandora box which, when opened, fills every house and every neighborhood with pain and sorrow. How many enmities and heart burnings flow from this source!-How much happiness is interrupted and destroyed! Envy, jealousy, and the malig-nant spirit of evil, when they find veut by the lips, go forth on their mission like foul fiends, to blast the reputation and peaco of others. Every one has his imperfections; and in the conduct of the best there will be occasional faults which might seem to justify animadversion. It is a good rule, however, when there is occasion for fault-finding, to do so privately to the erring one .-This may prove salutary. It is a proof of interest in the individual, which will generally be taken kindly, if the manner of doing it is not offensive. The common and nachristian rule, on the contrary, is to proclaim the failings of others to all but themselves. This is unchristian, and shows a despicable
